Biotonus Clinique Bon Port is integrated into the Grand Hotel Excelsior in Montreux, where it was established in 1983. The clinic focuses heavily on what they term “diseases of civilization”, including stress, burn-out, diabetes, cardiovascular diseases, obesity and insomnia.

All treatments begin with a full analysis of 100 parameters through blood, stools and urine analyses, conventional radiology, cardiovascular tests, morphological-nutritional analysis, and ultrasound scans. Programs are then tailored to the specific results of each individual, based upon the initial assessment. A core aspect of their treatment is addressing the use of psychoactive drugs, creating personalized plans to eliminate their use in their patients.

Biotonus has become a popular destination for many of the nearly 60,000 affluent Chinese medical tourists, China Daily reported last year. In fact Europe as a whole is a popular destination, estimated to attract 75% of Chinese travellers who cite a reputation for advanced medical practice as the main draw.
